Fancy skiing away from the crowds with no lift queues and polite, cheerful piste staff? Visit Formigal in the Spanish Pyrenees!

Formigal ski resort is located directly on the French/Spanish border in the western section of the Pyrenees. The resort is one of the best and modern in all of Spain and the Pyrenees. It's a superb resort for beginner and intermediate skiers with great blue and red pistes. This little known resort has had huge amounts of investment over the last few years and boasts modern facilities and a good snow record.

There are 4 ski areas which are lift linked – Sextas, Sarrios, Anayet and Portalet. It's one of the biggest ski resorts in Spain with 137km of pistes. It's a great resort with fantastic views over the Valle de Tena and into France.

Skiing is generally on wide open pistes, which are well groomed every night. There are blue runs from the top of every chair along with reds, so all levels are catered for. Many of the pistes are marked as family areas, with warnings against speed, making for a comfortable skiing environment.
